

Understanding and Tracking the Signs and Symptoms of Postpartum Depression

This tool and the record it helps you create are meant to help facilitate a meaningful dialogue with your healthcare provider. It does not replace your healthcare provider's professional assessment of your condition. Always talk to your doctor if you have questions about postpartum depression (PPD).

To help have productive conversations with your healthcare provider, it's important to keep track of how you're feeling during and after pregnancy. It's not uncommon to feel worried, irritable, and tearful. But sometimes feelings like these can become severe and persist over long periods of time. If they do, talk to your healthcare provider about these symptoms.

PPD is a common pregnancy-related medical condition, and approximately 1 in 8 moms in the US report experiencing symptoms after childbirth. Symptoms can start during pregnancy and up to 1 year after the birth of your baby.

Discuss the signs and symptoms of PPD with your doctor. Your doctor can help you with a plan to track any signs or symptoms of PPD.

How to use this tool:

1. Print out the calendar on the following page once for each week you'd like to track signs or symptoms you're experiencing. For example, if you want to track your symptoms for 1 month, print 4 copies of this page.
2. Fill in which week this grid represents (eg, Week #1, #2).
3. Fill in the date (month and day) under corresponding day of the week.
4. Consider the list of signs and symptoms and put an "X" or a check mark in the square that corresponds with the symptom and the day you experienced it. You can check multiple boxes for each day if you experience more than 1 category of signs or symptoms.
5. Leave the spaces blank for symptoms that you are not experiencing.
